Judge McCandius began charging the jury at cleven o'clock. In the progress of the case it might have been supposed they had been trying name other person than the defendant armigned They had been occupied with matters collateral to the issue, although relevant would have been ruled out the defendant had been arraigned and plead not guilty to two incurrency In one of the indictments a soils ing jo a clerical arror, a blank left not having been filled up. The jury were first to consider whether a case had been presented to justify them in finding a verdict of guilty, and second, whether the presumption or proof of guilt was repelled by the evidence for the defense. It was necessary for the Government to make out a case before the defendant was called upon to re spond. The first witness called upon to re spond. The first witness called was Johnson, who testified to what he says took piace at his house in Pithole, on which the first indictment was based. The second witness was Burke, who testified to what was charged in the second in dictment the seiling of counterfeit money to Myers, the defendan, to Boyd at the Hooseter Well De Haun testified to having seen Myers at Johnson's bourding house in lithole. This was intended to corroborate Johnson, who cossary for the Government to make out a testified to the selling of counterfeit money by Myers to a man named White or Manchester, at his house, in Angust, 1860—He also testified that he went with defend ant to a room in the Bherman House at Patrole um Centre, and was there shown some counterfielt fractional currency On these three witnesses the Government relied for convaction From purcessity the Government was in some cases required to plate accomplices upon the stand, and they were regarded as competent. On this question like Honor read from the charge of Judge Bidwin, in the celebratee case of he Bradder, the luw was clearly laid down Johnson was not charged as an accomplice, siltongh under indictment, and when asked whether he had purchased counterfeit money from Myres, had declined to make. If Johnson's testimony was exceled

It is indeed to as shown that he was present or held knowledge of what was being done. If the eye had been made out by the Government to the entire satisfaction of the lary the widebody sood shareher offered by the defendant amounted to nothing. The jury retiral at half past cleven colock, and after an absence of about thirty minutes returned with a verdey of "guilty. The defendant was ordered into the enatedy of the Mirshill and lodged in juil to twan southness.
